

YOUR EXIT

HOW SMART BUSINESS OWNERS ARE RAPIDLY BUILDING THEIR ORGANIZATION'S VALUE

A Presentation by GENE MARKS

It doesn't matter whether you plan to sell your business next year or ten years from now. The more important question is what is your business really worth today and how can you increase its value every year?

During this 45–60 minute presentation Gene will discuss:

- 5 reasons you should be selling your business;
- What your business is really worth;
- Key questions to ask yourself about your company and its future;
- Critical things every buyer looks for when pricing a company;
- How to increase your company's value;
- Whether valuing based on assets or income is best;
- The pros and cons of selling assets vs. your shares;
- The tax implications of selling your business;
- The benefits and downsides of using a broker;
- Key things to consider about Succession Planning;

And much more.

You should be thinking this way all the time. You should be building value all the time. Because one day you might want to sell your company. Or a potential buyer may appear who makes an offer. And you want to be ready. You want your business to be as valuable as possible.

Gene's presentation will help you focus on what you need to do to build value in your company and to position it to be sold...next year, or ten years from now.

Gene explains why so many business owners will be selling their businesses over the next few years and how you can capitalize on that trend. He'll take you through the reasons why business owners sell and what smart buyers are looking for. He'll give you the essential tools you'll need to know how to value your business like a professional appraiser. And you may not like what he tells you!

But most importantly you'll walk away with critical, real-life tactics for operating your company at its highest level. Because maybe you do want to sell it someday. Or maybe you don't. In either case, don't you still want to be as profitable as possible?

Gene's presentations help business owners & managers look ahead, making sure they are educated on critical issues affecting their industries.
